

Keota Council Receives No Bids For Old Garage

By Casey Jarmes | The News-Review

KEOTA – During the Oct. 6 meeting of the Keota City Council, City Clerk Hunter Bruns stated that there had been no bids for the barn-style garage at 108 East Keokuk Ave, which the council had put out for bid during the previous meeting, after accepting a bid to tear down the house at that property. Mayor Tony Cansler asked if the counsel wanted to keep the garage open for bids or demolish alongside the house. Councilman Keith Conrad stated that there was a person interested in the garage, but that they were likely scared off by the cost of moving the garage, which is tall and would require contacting Alliant Energy to temporarily move hanging wires. Conrad stated that it would have been nice if someone wanted it, and that it was nicer than the house it sat next to, but that they hadn't even received a $1 bid. He stated that he was open to leaving the bid window open until the next meeting, because he didn't think the demolition would happen for a few weeks. Public Works Director Micah Harmsen stated that they had to wait for Alliant to disconnect the house's power before demolishing it, something that could take a few weeks or over a month. Conrad stated that, if they did keep it open for bids, that would only give a very short time frame for the buyer to move the garage.

Councilman Mike Bender stated he was concerned that, if they pushed back the demolition, they would have to get a different bid to remove the concrete beneath the garage, which would likely cost more. He suggested demoing the garage. Councilwoman Patty Tinnies agreed with this. Councilman Heath McDonald stated that it was a nice little building, but too small to even park a pickup in. He stated he hated to see it torn down and was okay with leaving the bid window open until the next meeting. Ultimately, the council approved contacting the person who had spoke to Conrad about wanting to purchase the garage and demolishing the garage if they are no longer interested.

Harmsen stated that the tree planting, paid for by a Trees Forever grant, had gone well and gave thanks to the Keota FFA, Kelly Waters from Trees Forever, James Greenhouse and other volunteers for their help. He stated that they had begun measuring tree overhangs and would send out letters to people with trees hanging too low over roads. He stated that the new RV park was well received and had already been used by multiple people. McDonald asked if Harmsen still planned to move the old pavilion shelter at the small park to the RV Park. Harmsen stated that he was unsure, that it would be difficult to move, and that it needed to a new roof, but that there wasn't any money in the park budget right now. Conrad suggested getting a grant for the shelter. McDonald suggested putting a cheap aluminum shelter at the RV park. Harmsen also stated he wanted to update the pavilion at Lewis Memorial Park to match the pool. The council approved an Integrated Roadside Vegetation Management Plan, which Harmsen stated would allow them to get more grants in the future.

During the new council comments section, Conrad responded to accusations he'd heard that the council doesn't have regular meetings and isn't transparent enough. He stated that the city council has had the same meeting time, the first and third Wednesday of the month, for 152 years. He stated that they do go into closed session when discussing buying or selling real estate, because discussing it publicly leads to higher costs. Conrad also brought up a Wells Fargo grant for small businesses that Iowa State Urban Development told him

Sigourney Principals Discuss School Performance Profiles

By Casey Jarmes | The News-Review

SIGOURNEY – During the Oct. 8 meeting of the Sigourney School Board, Superintendent Kevin Hatfield stated that both schools had received "Commendable" status, according to the yearly school performance profiles. He noted the district's better than state average scores in attendance growth, chronic absenteeism, science proficiency, and math proficiency. High School Principal Shannon Webb noted that her school scored 70.90, compared to the state average of 63.28. She stated that the threshold for "High Performing Status," which Sigourney Jr-Sr High received last year, was 72, which they missed by a single percent. Webb stated that the secondary school would be targeted for special

THE HISTORICAL VIEWPOINT

What Cheer and the Non-Great Fires

By Casey Jarmes | The News-Review
Last week, I told the story of the Great What Cheer Fire of 1890. This fire was massive, claiming three blocks and causing $200,000 in property damage. That fire is the most infamous from the town's history. But, of course, there were other fires over the years.
On Aug. 13, 1892, at around 1 a.m., a fire broke out in the Palace Drug Store, spreading to multiple buildings and causing $50,000 ($1.78 million) in property damage. The fire department quickly arrived, but their water ran out, forcing them to drive down to the creek to refill. This gave the fire time to grow out of control, spreading to Griffith's drug store, the Masonic Hall, the Robinson meat market and the Lawson Bazzar. According to the What Cheer Patriot-Chronicle, the fronts of the buildings prevented the hose from acting on the fire.
All three of the buildings were abandoned, as the fire department made their stand at the Baines Bros. building. But, the great heat and the shortness of their hoses allowed the fire to spread to the wareroom in the back of the building. The firefighters, believing the fire was handled, left to go protect the Dollar Bros. blacksmith shop, only realizing their mistake and returning in the nick of time to save the Baines building. The fire spread to Wheeler's art gallery, causing the gallery's skylights to fall in. The firefighters drenched the art gallery, finally ending the blaze. The Chronicle described this in a fairly poetic way, writing "Thus by combined efforts it was saved and the progress of the destroyer here was stopped."

On May 13, 1903, at 3 a.m., a lamp exploded, causing a fire that destroyed a pair of buildings owned by A.J. Heubler and Steve Keating. The buildings contained the town's grocery store and meat market. The Sigourney Review mentioned that Heubler also lost $300 ($11,000) that he had hidden in his bed and that he was still digging through the debris to try and find the money, at the time of publication. A bucket brigade prevented this fire from spreading to the Eclipse hotel.

The Keokuk County News' recounting of the Oct. 18, 1913 fire begins by saying how fortunate it was that there had been no wind that night, because it would have made the fire far worse. That night, Mrs. Trebel, owner of the millinery store, locked up and left to go play bridge. Minutes later, she heard the alarm. The fire that began in the millinery store completely destroyed that building, as well as the nearby barber shop and the restaurant owned by Mr. Newman. The neighboring Buckles & Phillips building was only saved thanks to two men, last names Gilhousen and Davis, staying inside and holding shut the iron window coverings, to keep the fire from spreading.

The fire also spread to the restaurant owned by Mr. Crow, causing an explosion that blew down the ceiling. The Crow restaurant and the drug store were both saved by the owner of the Walker and Thompson machine shop, who let their hose be used to put out the flames. The Keokuk County News' recounting of this fire made special mention of the work firefighters Dennis Stapleton, T. Richardson and P. Lally did to stop the fire. The funny thing about the 1913 fire is that it began mere minutes after the city council had signed a contract to add a new water works system to help fight fires.
On June 9, 1915, the Oleiand's skating rink caught fire. The rink's tin roof made fighting the fire difficult, but the firefighters managed to put out the blaze. The Sigourney Review made special note of the fact that Mrs. Ed Lortscher provided hot chocolate to the firefighters, which allowed them to keep fighting the blaze late at night. On March 18, 1917, the What Cheer Clay Products Co., the largest business in the town, caught fire. The fire started in the plant's carpenter shop and spread to the blacksmith, machine repair shop and dry sheds and lumber storage, causing $15,000 ($404,970) in damage before being put out by the plant firefighters and the city firefighters. On Sept. 11, 1921, Jame's Do-people,” said Sage. Sage stated that people voted for Trump because they thought he would break the system, and that they system needed to be broken, but that Trump just broke the system so he could rerig it for himself. An attendee stated she was surprised Iowa was so hateful and that that they didn’t hate people when she was a kid. Sage stated that this was a population control tactic to keep people divided. He stated that social issues pop up around elections to divide people and make them angry so politicians can push their agendas forward. He stated that the corporations that run this country own the media and social media and that that’s why there’s so much hate. He stated we needed to put our phones down, talk to our neighbors, touch grass, and do community events again. He stated that, when they bring people together, they realize they’re all in the same community and can have real conversations. Sage stated that, if Iowa didn’t have immigrants, the state’s population would be steadily declining. He stated that his wife was Mexican and that her father, a Trump-loving Republican, was now worried about his grandchildren being kidnapped off the street by ICE. Sage stated that people who had been here for 40 years were part of our communities and part of our families and should be treated as such. He stated they needed an actual way for people to become citizens that doesn’t cost an arm and a leg or take 20-30 years. He stated that he served in the military with immigrants who joined because they believed it would be a faster way to become a citizen, and were still rejected for citizenship after serving multiple tours in Iraq. Sage criticized arresting immigrants who go to courthouses to try and apply for citizenship, saying immigrants were “damned if you do damned if you don’t.” He stated that people come to the U.S. for opportunities to give their family a better life and that we should give them the opportunity to actually be citizens.

“The Lord is my light and my salvation – whom shall I fear? The Lord is the stronghold of my life – of whom shall I be afraid?”
Psalm 27:1 (NIV)

Facing Our Fears
Many of us may have found that the fears we encountered as children have significantly changed as we grew older. Of course, this is normal, but sometimes, addressing our fears as adults can actually be a more difficult undertaking. A child may overcome their fear of a dark room upon a light switch being turned on, as they recognize there was nothing in the room for them to be afraid of. In the same way, we may overestimate the effect of our fears on ourselves, so it is quite important to stay grounded in this regard. This can be done by reasoning through our fears and their effects. Some determinations we can try to make are finding whether the fear is justified to begin with, whether it is a fear based in uncertainty, or whether it is a fear based on an impending occurrence that we’re aware of. It is also quite important to remember that we do not face our fears alone. As we develop relationships as we continue to grow in age and character, we may find it much easier in addressing fears, or really, any problem, by utilizing the support of our families, friends, or communities in faith. While the nature of our fears surely changes throughout our lives, we may find there are certain approaches to facing them that are universally beneficial.

about and stated he would leave info on the grant at city hall. McDonald stated that he’d been asked about the house that burned down a while back. He stated that the fire marshal had been to the property, that the owner was waiting on their insurance company, and that they said they would call McDonald after the insurance company gets back to them to discuss what they intend to do with the property. Bender asked if the house had been boarded up. McDonald said it was just taped. Bender stated he hopes they hear back soon so the house won’t be a safety hazard or a liability. Tinnes stated that she had received complaints from a resident about her neighbor doing target practice with a bow and arrow in their yard, which made the resident nervous.

ed, but hadn’t been told if it would be for math or English language arts yet. Webb stated that she felt the scores were decent overall, noting that the only SICL secondary school that performed better than Sigourney was BGM. Elementary Principal Deanna Spence stated that the elementary, which scored 62.43 compared to the state average of 63.28, had risen to “Commendable” from last year’s “Needs Improvement” status and was no longer targeted for special ed. She credited this to growth in special ed reading scores. Spence explained that the elementary scored 72.73 in science proficiency compared to the state average of 67.14, 81.82 in math proficiency compared to the state average of 70.93, and 67.27 in English language arts proficiency compared to the state average of 73.56. She stated they would focus on English this year and make sure kids both had the stamina to read long passages and understood what they said. Work-Based Learning Coordinator Jenny Bell gave updates on the different STEAM (Science Technology Engineering Art and Math) projects she had been teaching to elementary students. She explained that the freshman had taken interest surveys and were now looking into colleges that match the careers they are interested in. Bell stated that Savage Advantage students had made a new banner for Keokuk County Bowl and were currently helping Barn Wired by promoting their meal and drinks of the weak on Facebook and planning a teen night to attract young people to the coffee shop. She stated that Southeast Iowa Elite, Sinclair Tractor, Strong Source AG and Vision AG were also interested in having students help out. Bell stated that Sinclair had been approved for quality pre-apprenticeships and that FCA and Vision AG were also interested. Bell stated that there were only seven Work-Based Learning students this year, less than last year; of them, two are working at Sinclair, two are working at the school and one is working real estate. Hatfield noted that Sigourney was above average in Work-Based Learning scores, according to the performance profiles. Hatfield stated that insurance premiums had gone up to $945, compared to $660 four years ago, and stated that the the insurance committee was looking into possibly leaving the district’s current insurance trust. He stated that Sigourney had been with the trust for at least twenty years and that trusts were good because they were simple, but that the problem was they don’t give the school data or let them ask questions. He noted that Fairfield, BGM and Williamsburg had all left their trusts, believing they could get better service and save employees money. Hatfield stated that leaving a trust wouldn’t save the district money, but would allow more flexibility in negotiating compensation for teachers. Jenny Gay from the insurance committee stated that they had spoken to three insurance companies, all of which sounded better than what the district had now. Spence stated that the companies had offered to educate school employees and guide them to selecting better plans. HR Director Missy Sellers stated that they would do a processing meeting next to see if leaving the trust would be better. Hatfield stated that he would have the better of the insurance companies meet with the board during a work session. Hatfield showed the board the district’s enrollment numbers compared to last year, which had gone from: 34 to 28 in preschool, 284 to 299 in elementary, 92 to 97 in Jr High, 193 to 192 in high school, for a total going from 569 K12 last year to 578 this year.

Meet the Candidates: Cody Branstad

By Casey Jarmes | The News-Review
SIGOURNEY – Cody Branstad is running for re-election to the Sigourney School Board. Brandstad was first elected to the board eight years ago and had worked on improving the district's facilities and education.
"I just wanted to be a part of the community and help make a difference," Branstad said.

Branstad stated he wants to continue pushing for student excellence if reelected, tweaking material and growing the best they can. He also hopes to improve facilities. He noted that Sigourney is a small school, in an area with a declining population, making it a challenge to maintain and grow enrollment.
"The hope is to give every student a good opportunity," said Branstad.

Branstad grew up in Keota and moved to Sigourney after marrying his wife. He works as a veterinarian at the Keota Vet Clinic.
"We've got a lot of roots here, and want to continue that tradition that's here, whether it's for another hundred years or more, that would be ideal," said Branstad.

Meet the Candidates: Dan Redlinger

By Casey Jarmes | The News-Review
KEOTA – Dan Redlinger is running for reelection to the Keota School Board. Redlinger was first elected in 2021, after running to try and be more involved with the school. Since then, he and the other members of the board have dealt with the tail-end of the COVID-19 Pandemic and worked to improve facilities with a chiller project, classroom upgrades, and getting rooms ready for the preschool.
"Just lots of various things along the way," Redlinger said. "Small projects, here and there, just to make the school better in general, as well as taking the big leap and going to a four-day week, which so far had been successful."

Redlinger attended Keota as a child, graduating in 2002, and has worked for the Kinder Morgan Natural Gas Pipeline for 14 years. He lives south of Keota and has four children who attend the school.
Redlinger stated that state legislation had been a hurdle in the past four years, something he sees as a challenge going forward, and that money is getting tighter at every level. He stated that he wants to improve academics and test scores, and also make sure there are extracurricular opportunities so kids can think critically and be part of a team. He stated he wanted to focus on student and staff safety if reelected, noting that things were very turbulent right now.

"I want parents and staff to be sure that their kids are coming to a safe place where they can feel comfortable sending their kids too," Redlinger said.

Meet the Candidates: Frank Calvert

By Casey Jarmes | The News-Review
WHAT CHEER – Frank Calvert, a retired Vietnam War veteran, is running for the What Cheer City Council. Calvert is a member of the What Cheer Historical Walk Committee, which puts up signs with information about the city's past for people to read, and decided to run to see if he could help in other ways.
"We got some problems over here," Calvert said. "I want to just help see if I can keep it from getting worse, you know?..I know what's right and wrong, and I'll try to help the people of the town. We can get things better here. We're going downhill, a little bit. Hopefully we can bring What Cheer back."

Calvert was raised on a farm between Keswick and What Cheer and worked construction for fifty years before retiring. He noted that What Cheer, like all small towns, is facing a decreasing farm population and has less and less businesses. He stated that he'd like to try and bring more businesses to town.

"I get along with everybody. Even different views, I'm easy-going...We've had some problems with people yelling at each other in there, and that's not going to happen if I'm there. I'm gonna try to take the situation down a notch and talk to people in a calm, clear voice."

Meet the Candidates: Steven Seeley

By Casey Jarmes | The News-Review
SIGOURNEY – Steven Seeley is running for reelection to the Sigourney School Board. Seeley is currently finishing out his third term and twelfth year on the board. In that time, he focused on infrastructure, which had been neglected in the past, and getting the buildings to where they need to be to continue to function. Once the construction is done, he wants to focus on Work-Based Learning.

"I know I would have benefited from that a lot, as a high school student not really knowing what I wanted to do," Seeley said.
Seeley also stated that he wants to focus on test scores. Seeley graduated from Sigourney and has children who attend the school. He works for the Keokuk County Highway Department as a Roadside Manager. He noted that there are challenges finding and retaining teachers, because, while Sigourney is a good school district, it's a rural school without a lot around. He stated that they needed to focus on benefits and paying teachers what they're worth to keep teachers in Sigourney.

"They don't get paid enough for what they do. I know I couldn't do it," Seeley said.

Meet the Candidates: Michael Todd Cranston

By Casey Jarmes | The News-Review
KESWICK – Michael Todd Cranston is running for the Keswick City Council. Cranston, stated that he feels there is a lack of communication between citizens of Keswick and the current city council, and that he wants to open a better line of communication. He stated that Keswick, like all small towns, is struggling, and that he wants to bring more people to the town.

"We have a lot of homes here that are sitting empty, that are for sale, and maybe see if we can't do anything to draw more people to our area and rural Iowa, to try and strengthen our core community," said Cranston.
Cranston, who is currently retired, lives on Main Street and noted that there is a lot of traffic through the town right now, more than he ever remembered, but that no one stops. He stated that he wants to attract people to stop in town. Cranston noted that Keswick is facing challenges with money and stated he wanted to generate more money for the town or be creative with grants.

"See if we can't stream up a little more revenue first, and save it from going the way of Hayesville and other towns that have lost their post office and their incorporation as a city," said Cranston.

Meet the Candidates: Mike Bender

By Casey Jarmes | The News-Review
KEOTA – Mike Bender is running for reelection to the Keota City Council. Bender has been on the council for two terms. In that time, he's worked on new development and bringing businesses to the town. He stated that he believes that downtown has come a long way in the last eight years and wants to continue using grant money to bring in new businesses and help already existing businesses. If reelected, Bender wants to continue work on the park, pool and campground.
Bender noted the problems

Keota faces with its small size and distance from large cities, stating that he didn't want it to become like the smaller cities in the county. He noted that, when he was first elected, the city had a population around 950, and that it had since fallen to around 850.
"If we're not growing as a city, we become stagnant. And when you become stagnant, you start to lose. And I would rather see us continue to grow," Bender said.
Bender noted the lack of housing in Keota and stated he would like to sell properties to be used for new housing developments. He stated that a lot of properties in town are owned by the same person, which stunts opportunities for other businesses to come in, and stated that he didn't want it to take as long for new businesses to open in the future. He stated that the city had great success with abatements and that there were a lot of other grants they can go after.

Bender also stated it was important to work with the school and that he wanted to create a school resource officer position, possibly by sharing the position with other cities or school districts.
"Let's just see the city of Keota grow," Bender said.

Meet the Candidates: David Goldman

By Casey Jarmes | The News-Review
SIGOURNEY – David Goldman, the owner of a local plumbing and heating/cooling business, is running for an At Large Seat on the Sigourney City Council.
"I've been in business in Sigourney here for 40-some years or more. I'm kind of getting where I'm getting close to retirement, and I kind of have always wanted to try doing this, and I thought maybe I could be a benefit to the community," Goldman said.

Goldman stated that he wanted to make getting a new police force a priority. He stated that it would be nice to get more industry or businesses in Sigourney to grow the town, but that doing so would be a big challenge. He stated that there are a lot of retired people in town and that he wanted to keep a close eye on the city's finances to make sure taxes were as low as they could be.

"I've been in business for so many years and kind of know the ins and outs of stuff. Just maybe trying to make sure we're fiscally responsible for the city, that we're getting more bang for our dollar," said Goldman.

place them. Harper stated that they hadn't budgeted for this and that the two options where the school paid for the replacement worried him. He stated that, if they went with the final option, they could budget that cost during the next fiscal year.
McGuire noted that the school had moved the softball game start time to 5:30 p.m. and that they typically don't have a JV softball team. She asked if it was necessary to update the lights, because they don't use them much anyway. Harper stated that they could do nothing. He brought up the fact that the boosters were planning to use a Washington County Riverboat Foundation grant to level off the field and stated that they could replace the lights at the same time in summer 2026. He stated they could include the lights in the bond issue. Redlinger stated that the lights were sufficient for how often they used them and that the softball field was low on the priorities list for infrastructure updates. Harper stated that it was fine to leave them alone and that, the more they protected the school's general fund, the better.

The board approved spending $12,000 to purchase a city-owned lot next to the high school.
Jr.-Sr. High Principal Heather Rosewall noted that both schools had been marked "Commendable" by the State Performance Profiles. She stated that the secondary school had been either "Acceptable," "Commendable," or "High Performing" since 2018, and that it came close to "High Performing" this year. She noted good scores in English Language Arts proficiency, chronic absenteeism, and graduation rate. She noted that the growth score had declined, stating that they had a lot of growth the previous year, and that it was hard to have good growth when you have good proficiency. She stated that there were problems with how they coded the Work-Based Learning data and that Keota has more students taking college courses or working through the school than their score stated.

Milledge stated that the elementary's commendable score was a "huge win." He noted that, in his first year, 2023, the elementary was marked "Needs Improvement." He stated part of this was because they did testing in May, when kids are ready for the year to end, rather than in March like they did this year. He stated that the school was trending towards "High Performing," noting good English Language Arts growth, science proficiency, math proficiency, and especially English Language Arts proficiency scores. He stated that last year, which the profiles featured data from, they only had one chronically absent student, who was absent because they were in the hospital with mono. He noted a small drop in math growth and stated he wanted to grow that score and maintain the others.

Meet the Candidates: Larry Chmelar

By Casey Jarmes | The News-Review
WHAT CHEER – Larry Chmelar is running for the 4th Ward Seat on the Sigourney City Council. Chmelar told the News-Review that he decided to run after being asked by Gary Iosbaker, who is leaving the 4th Ward Seat to run for mayor, to fill his seat and said that several council members thought he would be a good addition. Chmelar moved to Sigourney in 2021, to be closer to his father, who lives in Washington.
"We didn't really know anything about Sigourney, but since we've moved here we really love living here. We love our neighborhood. Love our neighbors. Got some great neighbors," Chmelar said.

He stated that he had attended several council meetings to get the feel of the city government and previously applied to be the town's code enforcer. He stated that he would like to bring law enforcement back to Sigourney, pursue economic development, and make Sigourney a great place to live.
"I also know that, sitting on city council, there are going to be decisions that you have to vote up or down, and depending on what they are those decisions are either going to make people happy, or some people are going to be really upset," Chmelar said. "But, you know, you make your decisions based on what's best for the community, just to make your community successful. I know that it's not a glamorous position, sitting on city council, by any means, but as long we can keep talking, and have an understanding of people's position, and keep it all civil, then that's what makes doing it satisfying and rewarding."

Meet the Candidates: David Campbell

By Casey Jarmes | The News-Review
WHAT CHEER – David Campbell, a retired semi-truck driver, is running for the What Cheer City Council.
"I've been here for twenty years, and I've watched city council hold this town back," Campbell claimed. "Years ago, we had a chance of getting a new $2 million Casey's, it was going to go where the Dollar General is now and go north, and one man killed that, Mike Danner, and he's running for council. He killed that Casey's from coming in because he didn't want to hear the traffic. And it's upsetting that people are wanting rules passed that benefit only a few people, rather than a majority of the people."
Campbell claimed that, currently, three members of the city council are part of the Van Patten family and that they used to employ two members of that family to work for the city. He stated it felt like one family dictated what everyone else does. He stated that the council had claimed that they can only do so many years per year, and that they can't afford to do new roads because they spend so much on maintenance, but that, when people get elected to the council, their roads get done that year.

"To me, it's totally unfair. Everybody pays their taxes, if they own land. Everybody should get the same benefits," said Campbell.
Campbell brought up the 2021 Build Back Better infrastructure and stated he wanted to use federal funding to repair What Cheer's water system. He stated that several fire hydrants are missing and that he wanted to put all new water lines in throughout the town. Campbell stated that only half of the town is hooked up to the city sewer, with the rest of the town, including his house, on septic tanks. He stated that he wanted to hook up the rest of the city, including vacant lots, to the sewer system, as well as get the roads hard covered. He stated that ignoring infrastructure will not make the town grow and that, once the infrastructure overhaul is done, they can try to bring in businesses and building companies to revamp the city. Campbell also stated he wanted to add a Facebook page where people can communicate with the council and stated he would answer any questions.

Campbell stated that the current council was trying to pass a law saying people can't live in campers within city limits. He stated that people only live in campers because they can't afford to live elsewhere and that this law would force them onto the street. He stated that the council would then not want people living on the street and find ways to kick them out of town.
"Leave them alone. Leave people alone. They're paying taxes on their property, let them do what they wish to do," Campbell said. "These are a lot of the things that I just cannot tolerate, how one person expects everybody to live in their comfort zone, and abide by what they want done, rather than have the freedom to do with their own land what they wish."

Meet the Candidates: Keith Conrad

By Casey Jarmes | The News-Review
KEOTA – Keith Conrad, a farmer and long term member of the Keota City Council, is running for reelection. In November, Conrad will end his fourth term and sixteenth year on the council.
"It takes time," Conrad said. "Four years is not enough. Eight years isn't enough. And I got into it, and once you start getting continuity with a council, you're able to get stuff completed...I love serving the community, I'll just put it that way. If there's things I can help out with, I absolutely want to."
Conrad stated that, during the time he's been on the council, Conrad has helped get fourteen old, abandoned houses torn down, finding grants to fund these projects. He stated that he was highly involved on redoing the city's sewer, which he stated they managed to get done for $3 million instead of an initial estimate of $10 million. Conrad also worked on upgrading the city's water lines.
"My whole goal when I started was to work on revitalizing downtown and housing," Conrad said. "As we see, we got the downtown finally coming through. The housing is the tricky part, and that's where I've dedicated a lot of my time, just trying to figure out what our next step is going to be."

Conrad stated that he created a comprehensive plan, which required a lot of work developing different plans and studies, but opened the city up for new grant funding.
"So a councilman that says, 'I'm going to come and show up to meetings,' that's not going to cut it," Conrad said. "You're going to have to spend a lot of time outside, knocking on doors, getting to know the people, let them know what's going on in your community. So if you're not willing to knock on a door and knock on every door, it's going to be a long four years."
If reelected, Conrad plans to continue looking for properties that can be developed for new infrastructure and building projects. He stated the city was at a point where zoning can finally take off, and that he was trying to have a big vision with properties and plan out properties near each other, because it is easier for developers to build on multiple neighboring lots than a single lot.

Conrad grew up in Keota and graduated from the high school in 1992. He studied Ag Business Management at Iowa State and has been farming since 1997.
"Just raising my family here, having my roots here, I want to see progress come to our community," Conrad said. "When I first started, in 2009, it was falling apart. I think you can attest to that. We had a lot of issues here, and sometimes, correcting things is very difficult...(the difficulty) is trying to get the community onto a vision. It's a steep process, and nothing's easy. It's going to take some time, especially since we're dealing with government. It's not a fast process, it's a slow moving process, and not everybody sees that. I think that's where my degree in management kind of comes into place; you've got to be focused and stay on track."

COUNTRY GIRL’S CORNER

The Leaves Are Falling

By Sheryl L. Carter

A slow week this week, but it sped up at the end. We got a little rain this week, Monday .5”, Tuesday .3” and Friday .4”, which adds up 1.2”, and for which we are grateful. I don’t think it has affected the farmers too much, as harvest proceeds, and the dust billows as they go through those brown fields of beans.

Tuesday, I made a delicious double batch of rice pudding complete with raisins, and taking a hint from one of my favorite cooking shows, “Patti’s Mexican Table”, added a fragrant stick of cinnamon and a hefty peel from an orange. I was excited to taste the difference, but there wasn’t much, but the raisins did taste wonderful in that creamy pudding.

My one grandmother used to make tapioca pudding with big ball tapioca, and it was so very good. Last year a friend gave me her recipe for it, and it tasted just like my grandmother’s! Yum. I love food. And watching Patti on PBS is always a treat. She was born in Mexico, but married an American, and now lives in Washington, DC, and they have three sons, Alan, Sam, and Juju.

In Patti’s various broadcasts, her sons join her occasionally, beginning when they were in younger, and now grown up and tall, towering over their sweet mom, as she is pretty sweet. Her laugh sounds like a bell, and the boys seem to just love her. They sometimes help her cook on the show, and love to eat what she makes as it always looks so delicious. As they guide large fork fulls of food to their hungry mouths, the response is always the same, “So good!!” Patti loves to prepare her savory dishes with lots of hot peppers, of which there must be endless varieties, and those boys love that hot food, too.

The other day she made up a batch of caramel pancakes with a topping, and the whole thing looked just out of this world. I love to hear her accent as she speaks to the camera, and pretty much figure the guy behind the camera is going to be enjoying some of this delicious food as soon as the show is over.

Last Wednesday evening I led our ladies Bible study at church. Then on Thursday morning we had our monthly Book Club up at the Coffee Cup where we can have a bite of breakfast if we so desire. We discussed our book of the month, “Before We Were Yours”, a story based on the horrific child trafficking that went on in the South in the ‘30’s, from the Tennessee Children’s Home run by that monster, Georgia Tann, who got rich by stealing and adopting out babies and children.

The children’s names were immediately changed so tracing them would be impossible, and the parents were poor and unable to do anything about it. It was a terrible story, and many of these kids died right there on those grounds and probably buried around there somewhere. Wealthy people came in and adopted these children after being told lies about their status, and paid that woman big sums to take a baby or a kid home. It was about more than I could get through.

We got a new book for this next month on Thursday at the library uptown, as our librarian gets them in from other libraries for us. I brought the new one home and finished it last night. I had to see what happened, as it was another page turner. “Don’t Let Him In”, is a well-crafted story, if you can hop over some of the language, of a crafty psychopath who over the years unbelievably worms his way into the affection of a whole list of women, marries some of them, has kids with some, lies, lies, lies, and then goes his merry way after bilking them out of vast sums of money.

This author writes from the viewpoint of the horrible criminal who is a consummate actor—he can even cry on demand—in the way he knows how to so skillfully handle each unsuspecting, but stupid woman, as my land, people, can’t you see the truth here somewhere?? And she also writes from the women/family he is in the process of deceiving. The author states at the end that although this story is fiction, there are plenty of psychos out there who do and have done these same things. And she includes a list. Yikes.

After that, I had to get my Bible out and read some verses to wash my mind out, and finished with a chapter or two of James Herriot’s little Book of Cats. Sheesh. I actually did sleep, which I wasn’t sure I even would be able to.

After Book Club, I drove into Pella for my weekly shopping, and I needed a whole slew of groceries, but that was soon accomplished, and after I dropped some things off at the Thrift, did a quick look and picked up a couple of things, then with my bottle of cold Pepsi and a delicious Snickers bar (it was a little treat), I was off to Knoxville to my holistic provider at Juniper Tree Health and Wellness on West Pleasant. She and I chatted a bit, then I bought a couple of tinctures, and was off for home.

On Friday, as I write this on Sunday afternoon, October 12, Scottie came up for the day and we soon had a hot fire going, the big blue coffee pot on, and then we were off to the garden to dig potatoes. I didn’t have a lot this year, but am glad for what there is. As he finished up that job, I got our dinner around, and we soon had fresh dug potatoes sliced up and sizzling in hot bacon fat, and then added some hot dogs to the grill as the coffee bubbled away. It was a tasty repast we both agreed.

Last week I ordered a grill with fold out legs from Amazon and it came quickly. I set it over the dug-out cook spot, and boy, it did just fine. Much better than the metal refrigerator shelf we had been using. The new grill worked perfect!

Scottie got through all the little jobs I had written on our list, and by 4 p.m., we were on our way out to Many Treasures to see what they had to offer. Yesterday morning I was back out there to pick up a few things I had thought about overnight, which by then was half price.

Today has been church and Sunday School, and a nice quiet afternoon at home. No complaints there.

See you next time!

OFF THE VINE

By Jackie Perkins

Sunday, October 12, 2025.

The sun is shining in University Park – but the furnace has ticked on Autumn is at our door and when driving down the tree lined streets, the color is just beginning to burst.

The early project for today was to bake Pride of Iowa cookies. I only located one cookie sheet, so on to my second choice – chocolate chip bars. Looking forward to this afternoon as Sieren cousins are meeting for us to learn more about our roots. We have two from the next generation joining us, so this should be interesting.

The past week has been fairly calm, with no work being done on our building project. We’ve been working at Fremont and have decided to have a Big Sale in our garage. We plan on being around there beginning Wednesday so if in the area, stop by. The “fire sale” signal is about to go up so the final determination has to happen!

What a meal for sixty plus last Tuesday! The tables were loaded with tasty dishes and happy people. Come join us! Next month I’m hoping to have a program regarding Veterans, so bring a Vet for lunch!

I enjoyed ARTE Club at Kathy Streets home on Wednesday and Sit and Stitch at Fiddle Dee Dee in Keota on Thursday. I so enjoy my time there, and this time the Bridge card group were there as well. I visited briefly with Kate Berg, and hopefully she and Mich will stop by if they come this way. I am so thankful to have fun sharing the space!

We began digging the iris this week. We have the areas ready to be planted here. Just trying to decide where. We hand-planted black berries, rhubarb and gooseberries. I guess we’ll see how the deer like them.

I am looking forward to the Historical Museum Open House next Sunday. Also on Thursday the 23rd there will be a program at the library here in Oskey. It is on the ghost towns of Mahaska County at 6:00. We went to the What Cheer Opera House and heard this individual tell about the towns in Keokuk County. Very interesting!

Finally, we got our new address! There is no mail delivery in UP, so a post office box is required. I thought all we would have to do was go in, make a request and pay. Not nearly so simple anymore. Verification by several documents were required, but we got it done! If anyone would like to send mail, our address is PO Box 245, University Park, 52591.

Last week we moved into the modern age of internet. I don’t know what we will use it for other than TV – but we got it yet! I don’t have much interest yet and it certainly frustrates me. Thankfully, Hollie’s aunts, Dece and Marilyn came and got us into the world of TV. It was so much easier when you plugged the thing in the wall and changed the channels. Now it’s an adventure every-time I try to find something to watch – but we will get there!

Time to wrap up this “cursive” written column. I don’t know what we will do about this computer situation and I just don’t have the time to deal with it right now.

Until next time – enjoy the season!

PS – I saw lilacs in bloom this past week!

Robert “Bob” Schauf

1946-2025

SIGOURNEY—Robert “Bob” Schauf, age 79, of Sigourney, Iowa, passed away peacefully at his home on October 9, 2025.

Bob was born on April 19, 1946, in Wellman, Iowa, to Doyle and Goldie (Ellis) Schauf. He graduated from Sigourney High School in 1966 and spent a brief time working in Cedar Rapids before answering the call to serve his country. In 1967, Bob enlisted in the United States Marine Corps, proudly serving in Vietnam for 13 months until his honorable discharge in 1969. A true patriot, Bob remained deeply proud of his service throughout his life.

On August 17, 1974, Bob married the love of his life, his “Honey,” Debbie Northup, at the Sigourney Christian Church. Together they raised three children: Ryan, Amber, and Hayley (Greg) Hammes. Bob’s life was grounded in family, service, and community.

He dedicated 35 years to the Iowa Department of Transportation, retiring in 2010. Bob especially loved plowing snow in the winter. Some of his best stories came from behind the wheel of his plow, and he always had a tale to share.

Outside of work, Bob was a passionate sports fan, faithfully cheering on the Iowa Hawkeyes, Chicago Bears, and St. Louis Cardinals. But nothing brought him more joy than supporting his children and grandchildren in their many sporting events. Whether it meant driving across town or across the state, Bob made sure he had the best seat in the house.

In retirement, he devoted himself fully to being “Grandpa.” His grandchildren describe him as humble, goofy, a straight shooter, a one of a kind man, a tough soul with a heart of gold, and someone who showed unconditional love in everything he did. His Marine discipline sometimes shined through, but it was always with love and integrity. In recent years, Bob found deep fulfillment reconnecting with fellow Marines, sharing memories and camaraderie through the power of technology.

Bob was a member of the Sigourney Christian Church, the American Legion, and the Sigourney Pride Athletic Boosters.

Bob is survived by his beloved wife, Debbie; his children Ryan and Hayley (Greg) Hammes; and his cherished grandchildren Brianna, Payton, Madi Schauf, Makenna, DJ, and Monroe Hammes. He is also survived by his sister Evelyn Pierce; brothers-in-law Mike Northup and Jim Voss; sisters-in-law Cris Utterback and Carol Wehr; and many nieces and nephews.

He was preceded in death by his parents Doyle and Goldie Schauf; his parents-in-law Steve and Alleen Northup; his daughter Amber Schauf; sisters Frances Baumert, Dorothy Niffenger, Betty Strickler, and Rosemary Voss; nephews David and Earl Strickler; and twin great-grandbabies.

No services will be held at this time. A celebration of life will be planned at a later date.

Bob will be deeply missed, but his legacy of love, strength, humor, and devotion lives on in the many lives he touched.

an’s garage caught fire, causing $15,000 in damage as the flames damaged seven cars, two trucks and a tractor.

On May 28, 1977, Ron Harden, owner of Harden’s Funeral Chapel came into his office for the morning and noticed that his clock had stopped. He went to check the fuse box, heard a noise, then turned to see a yellow glow coming from the chapel. Harden fled the chapel to call the fire department, then ran back into the burning building and dragged out the casket containing the body of Vera Whittington, whose funeral had been scheduled for the next day. The What Cheer Fire Department, with help from the Deep River, Delta, Keswick and Sigourney departments, managed to get the blaze under control, but the funeral home was completely destroyed. The fire also damaged the nearby community center, which was used as city hall, forcing the city’s files to be quickly moved to the Patriot-Chronicle office before they burned. In total, the fire did $100,000 ($537,274) in damage.

On May 30, 1991, at 2 a.m., What Cheer Fair Grounds groundskeeper Morris Trabert was awakened by a bright light outside his home at the fairgrounds. By the time he ran outside, the fire had already engulfed the north side of the wooden barn containing the horse stalls. Trabert rushed into town to call the fire department, who put out the fire. Fifteen harness-racing horses were killed by the blaze and buried in the centerfield of the racetrack.

Over the years, What Cheer firefighters have worked tirelessly to keep the city safe from fire. Most of the big fires have, thankfully, been put out without any loss of life. But, in 1933, the town wasn’t so lucky. In 1933, a fire at the meat market led to an explosion, claiming the lives of four firefighters.

That story deserves its own column, which I’ll share next week.

By Mark Schafer | The News-Review
WEST DES MOINES - All of the teams now have a much clearer picture on what they need to do to extend their season.
Last week the Iowa Girls High School Athletic Union announced the regional pairings for the State volleyball playoffs. Two of the area schools learned they would have a rematch to start the post season.
In the first round of the class 1A region 3 bracket Keota and English Valleys will square off in a South Iowa Cedar League matchup. The Oct. 20 game will be the second time this year that Keota and English Valleys have played in Keota. The Eagles won the first match 3-0.

Bears fall to No. 4 Iowa Valley to close district play

By Mark Schafer | The News-Review
NORTH ENGLISH - A steady passing attack wasn't quite enough for English Valleys on Friday night.
English Valleys had thoughts of an upset on their mind in the game against the No. 4 ranked team in 8-player Iowa Valley. Both teams scored early in the first quarter, but that was as close as the score would get as Iowa Valley would run away with a 71-26 win.
Throughout the game the Bears tried to use their passing attack to move the ball down field, but had limited success. Although their first drive resulted in a touchdown to Everett Bender through the passing attack, Iowa Valley quickly adjusted.

The Tigers seemed hard to stop on Friday night.
Iowa Valley junior Nolan Kriegel was especially difficult to catch on Friday. The junior had 104 yards rushing, and four touchdowns on the ground. Additionally, he completed three of his six passes for 76 yards and a touchdown.
If that wasn't enough Kriegel also was able to catch one touchdown pass as well.
The Tigers scored eight touchdowns with their offense as they picked up 244 yards of rushing yards and 92 passing yards. The defense of Iowa Valley also scored off a fumble recovery.

No stats were available for the Bears at press time.
English Valleys will conclude their regular season this week as they host Meskwaki Settlement School (0-7). The Warriors are coming of an 80-16 defeat against GMG. This season the Warriors have scored just 52 total points.
The Bears are averaging 46 points per game this season. They have scored 52 or more points in all four of their victories this year.
Kickoff is slated for 7 p.m.

How social media affects kids' mental health

Social media has become such a key component of most people's lives that it is easy to think that it is always been there. SixDegrees, created in 1997, was the first social media site similar to the format known today. When SixDegrees shut down in 2001, Friendster, LinkedIn, MySpace, and Facebook soon took root. The University of Maine reports there are now 4.8 billion social media users worldwide, representing 92.7 percent of all internet users. And according to the American Family Survey 2023, 96 percent of parents say their kids have access to at least one social media platform. Many use multiple online platforms daily.

Although social media may have originated as a means to bring people together, there are many who argue that it actually does the opposite. Instances of cyberbullying, which is a form of online harassment, have grown as social media has become more pervasive. Some experts believe that mental health concerns are an unexpected side effect of increased social media use, says Johns Hopkins Medicine. In fact, in the spring of 2023, United States Surgeon General Vivek Murthy, MD, MBA, released an advisory that suggested social media is harmful to young people. In 2024, Dr. Murthy called for a surgeon general's warning label on social media not unlike the warnings on cigarette packages.

How might social media affect children's mental health? Here are some of the main concerns.

- Changes in a developing brain: According to the Surgeon General's report, children's brains go through a highly sensitive period of development between the ages of 10 and 19, when feelings of self-worth are forming. Frequent social media use may affect these feelings as children compare themselves to others they see online. In addition, functions like emotional learning, impulse control and emotional regulation may be affected.
- Development of depression: Johns Hopkins Medicine says research has demonstrated there are high rates of depression attributed to very low social media use and very high social media use. Finding a healthy balance might not be as easy as it seems.
- Addiction: There is some evidence that children become addicted to checking social media, which can lead to addiction-like behaviors in other areas. According to The Addiction Center, a Web-based substance abuse resource, addiction to social media is driven by an uncontrollable urge to log on that impairs other important areas of life. Fear of missing out (FOMO) is another threat to kids' mental health.
- Low self-esteem issues: Children and teenagers who compare themselves to others' carefully curated online profiles (which usually are not telling the whole story) can develop feelings of inadequacy and body image issues.
- Exposure to inappropriate content: Social media may introduce children to content and images that are not appropriate for their age levels and capacity to understand and interpret. According to Dr. Murthy's report, deaths have been linked to suicide- and self-harm-related content, such as risk-taking challenges or asphyxiation content. Viewing this content normalizes these behaviors for some youngsters.

Although plenty of good can come from social media, parents are urged to exercise caution when giving children access to these platforms, which can affect kids' mental health in negative ways.

Athletes of the Week

Pantera Spies

Last week it seemed to be her right arm that continued to swing momentum for her team.

English Valleys sophomore, Pantera Spies had one of the more outstanding single match performances of any athlete this year. In an Oct. 6 match against BGM, the continued heavy hits of Spies helped lift English Valleys to a 3-1 match victory.

Although Spies only finished with six kills, her ability to dig out the ball was a constant turning point for her team. Spies had 22 digs in the match, averaging 5.5 digs per set. Her ability to keep the ball alive is what English Valleys used to win the match.

Spies also had six aces throughout the match.

The News-Review would like to congratulate Spies on her outstanding week of play and for being named this week's Athlete of the Week.

Ike Molyneux

His rushing yards alone, out gained the entire Durant team.

Sigourney-Keota junior running back Ike Molyneux had a strong game on Friday night as he was able to rush for four touchdowns and 225 total yards.

The four touchdowns enough would have been good enough to give the Cobras a victory, but Molyneux proved to be a tough runner to stop on Friday night.

He averaged 7.5 yards per carry and had one touchdown that went for 30 yards.

Defensively he didn't stop either. He finished the game with 1.5 total tackles, which included half a tackle for a loss. Molyneux's only downfall on Friday night was an incomplete pass that he attempted in the game.

The News-Review would like to congratulate Ike Molyneux on his outstanding game on Friday night.

Cobras down Durant, claim playoff berth

SIGOURNEY - They aren't done playing at home just yet.

Although their regular season home slate has wrapped up, the Sigourney-Keota football team knows they will be returning to the Snake Pit at least one more time this season. On Friday night the Cobras were able to use a steady offense to gain an ultimate 44-14 victory over Durant.

The win was critical for the fate of the Cobras this season. The victory assures the Cobras that they will make the playoffs. Also, because of the win the Cobras know they will be hosting at least a first round playoff game.

At first there was a bit of concern that the game might have an all too familiar feeling to it. Durant took an early lead when they were able to score on the very first drive of the game. That was the last time that Durant seemed to feel comfortable.

Sigourney-Keota would respond as Carson O'Rourke was able to return the ensuing kickoff off, all the way for a touchdown, allowing the Cobras to tie the game.

It wasn't long before the Cobras would take the lead.

A familiar face continued his junior season success for Sigourney-Keota as Ike Molyneux would close out the opening quarter with a long touchdown run to help power the Cobras to a 14-7 lead after the first quarter.

Molyneux would score one more time in the first half as he pummeled the Durant defense for a four-yard touchdown run with just over a minute remaining in the first half. In between the two touchdown runs of Molyneux the Cobras were able to score a touchdown when Brayden Wood connected with Ayden Galindo on a 44-yard touchdown pass.

At halftime the Cobras enjoyed a comfortable 28-7 lead. However, the Cobras were far from done.

Midway through the third quarter Molyneux scored off a 10-yard touchdown run to extend the lead 35-7. Durant did score late in the third quarter, but that was countered with a final touchdown run by Molyneux.

rest of the district play. With wins over EBF, Louisa-Muscataine and Durant the Cobras hold all the tie breakers over the rest of the teams in their district.

A win this Friday night against Cardinal will officially secure a second place finish in the district.

Molyneux led the Cobras with 225 yards rushing on Friday night. That included his four touchdowns. He averaged 7.5 yards per carry. Wood added 51 yards off nine rushes. Ayden Galindo and O'Rourke combined for four rushes for five yards.

Wood completed both of the passes he attempted for 58 yards and a touchdown.

Galindo caught both passes for 58 yards and a touchdown.

John Berg led the Cobras with four solo tackles on the night. Jacob Libe added three solo tackles, as did Chase Clarahan.

O'Rourke had an interception. He also returned two kicks for 103 total yards and a touchdown.

The Cobras held Durant to 131 yards of total offense.

The win improves Sigourney-Keota to 3-4 overall on the season and 3-1 in district play. Friday night their regular season will conclude with a game against Cardinal (1-6, [1-3]). Kickoff is slated for 7 p.m.

Pekin uses two fourth quarter scores to erase late deficit, claim Class A District 5 crown

By Mark Schafer |
The News-Review

DANVILLE - The win, the perfect season all seemed to vanish.

When Danville intercepted a second-straight Riley Smith pass and then scored off a quarterback sneak to take a 10-point lead late in the third quarter, it seemed like Pekin had lost everything they had been working for. It would have been easy for the team to feel defeated too. However, that's not what Pekin's football team is made out of.

Instead, going down by ten was the rallying point the Panthers would use. It was the last time the Panthers would let any sort of defeat flash across their mouths.

"We exemplify a never give up mentality," Pekin Head Football Coach, Klynt Weber said after the game. "I'll be honest, in tonight's game we were beat three times. We weren't going to let them beat us a fourth time, and when that fourth time came, players made plays, and that mantra really rang true tonight. The guys that needed to make plays, Riley (Smith), Nolan (Glick), Henry (Adam), Alijah (Brock), all of them made a play at some point or another. They are playmakers and all a reason why we won tonight."

The final 13 minutes of the game weren't easy, but they belonged to the Panthers as Pekin rallied to an eventual 32-27 victory. It all started with what had been the biggest weakness of the Panthers in the second half. A pass.

In order to juice up the passing game the Panthers jazzed up the type of passing they would do. After a favorable kickoff return, the Panthers set up on their own 42 yard line. Henry Adam would prove to be the first player to make a play.

He went in motion from the right side of the formation to the left. As Smith snapped the ball he stopped and threw the ball back to Adam, who had shifted his position three yards behind Smith. Adam was wanting to throw the ball, but he had trouble.

A Danville defender had shadowed Adam and was chasing him down in the backfield. Adam spun out of the first tackle attempt, but was rushed on time. He set his feet and fired the ball deep down towards the direction of Alijah Brock who was completely uncovered around the Danville 20 yard line. As soon as the ball left Adam's hands he was clobbered by the Danville defender.

It didn't matter. The ball wobbled into the arms of Brock, who turned around and raced, untouched into the endzone. The score brought the Panthers within three points, 27-24 with 13 minutes and 13 seconds remaining in the game.

The next big break for the Panthers would come off yet one more interception.

Late in the fourth quarter the Panthers were going for the lead, but on a fourth and five, and Smith facing pressure from the Danville defense, Smith fired a pass to the endzone. The hurried pass was off target and easily intercepted by a Danville player. The interceptor then tried to make a play.

However, the grass, soaked with dew, proved to be too slick and the defender stumbled, and ended up downing the ball at the Bears three yard line.

The next play turned the game around. Danville tried to get some breathing room and run the ball straight up the middle. Adam, though rushed into the line of scrimmage and stopped the running back before he could get out of the endzone.

"We knew that we had to get something," Weber said. "We actually didn't have any intention on getting a safety on that play. We just knew we had to get something and the goal was to get them to punt. Henry Adam just over, and over, and over, makes plays. He was able to get through the defensive line and made the tackle in the endzone."

The tackle in the endzone led to a safety for the Panthers, and suddenly, with 3:39 left in the game, Pekin trailed, 27-26.

"Getting that safety really turned the game around for us," said Pekin senior Nolan Glick. "It gave us all the momentum that we needed to finish the game."

The next offensive sequence wouldn't go well for the Panthers as they gained some yards, but ultimately turned the ball over on downs. Danville would get the ball back at their own nine yard line.

Just a few plays later, Pekin went for the championship. Danville, not having any success with their run game, tried to get a pass play going. They sent their running back out of the backfield for a small passing route. Recognizing the play, Glick timed the pass, and despite having to leap nearly two stories in the air to make the play, he was able to intercept the pass.

Once he landed, no one dared to get in his way. "I was like there was no way we were going to let them take the game away from us," Glick said. "We had worked too hard to get this. I knew that I had to do something here. I just waited for a chance to make the play."

Untouched, Glick rushed 11-yards into the endzone, giving the Panthers a 32-27 lead with 1:27 left in the game.

"Once I caught the ball I was just thinking I need to get to the endzone," Glick said. "I took off and I was untouched all the way to the endzone. Being able to cross the goal line to take the lead, that was the best feeling in the world. I wouldn't trade that feeling for anything else in the world."

The interception was the first Glick has recorded this season, and just the second interception the Panthers have returned for a touchdown this year.

"Nolan just made a great read on the play, he knew what to expect, and jumped up and undercut the ball," Weber said. "You got to be able to jump to make the play like he did. He was able to get the ball into the endzone in the fourth quarter for us. I'll be honest, we were struggling to score in the fourth quarter. Hats off to the Danville defense and how they were able to stop us."

The Panthers had the lead, now all they had to do was hang on.

For the third-straight drive Pekin would make a stop on Danville, but it didn't come without more adversity. The Bears were able to cross midfield and made it down to the Pekin 28 yard line. Time was running out and the Bears were going for the kill. The first down play was swatted away. The second down pass was nearly intercepted, but fell to the grass for another incompleton. On third down the pass was tipped, nearly caught by a Danville player, but dropped.

It all led to one final play. Fourth and 10 from the Pekin 28. The district championship was on the line.

Pekin brought the blitz as two of the defensive linemen broke free and chased down Danville quarterback, Dillan Mason. Mason retreated to the 35 yard line before throwing a ball off his back foot, arcing the pass over the two Pekin defenders that were chasing him. The ball floated to the right sideline. Two Danville receivers tracked it down, but getting to it first was Reed Lauderman, who ran vertically up the sideline to get the interception and seal the win for the Panthers.

"That was just a classic and someone had to come out on top," Weber said.

This is the first time since Weber has been at Pekin that the Panthers have won their district championship. With the district title comes an added insurance of at least one home playoff game.

"I don't think there is a single other team that has worked as hard as we have to get here," Glick said. "We are always doing everything we can to work together, as a team."

The Panthers finished the game with 199 yards passing. Riley Smith completed 10 of 21 passes for 141 yards and a touchdown. Adam completed one of 2 passes for 58 yards and a touchdown.

Adam caught five passes for 54 yards. Alijah Brock caught one pass for a 58 yard touchdown. Lauderman caught two passes for 58 yards and a touchdown. Glick caught two passes for 25 yards.

Glick ran the ball 21 times for 144 yards with a touchdown. He also passes the 1,000 yard rushing mark on the season. Smith rushed 12 times for 39 yards. Adam had seven rushes for 23 yards.

Glick and Lauderman both had an interception in the game.

Pekin is 7-0 on the season, and 5-0 in district play. Next week the Panthers will play against Columbus (3-4) in Columbus.

Pekin players Nolan Glick (front) and Carson Cornstock (5) celebrate after winning a 32-27 victory over Danville on Oct. 10. Glick scored the game-winning touchdown.

School Spirit Shines in the English Valleys Student Section

By: Kaleb Bolinger

If you've attended an English Valleys football or volleyball game, you've definitely noticed our energetic student section. They bring the noise, excitement, and pride that make every game more memorable. The student section fuels both teams with contagious energy—celebrating every big play, keeping spirits high, and showing what true Bear pride looks like.

Each game brings a new theme, keeping things fresh and fun. From Pajama Night to USA Night, the creativity and enthusiasm never stop. Students show up dressed to impress, ready to cheer their hearts out and support their classmates on the court and field.

But the student section doesn't stop at home games, they travel, too! On September 26th, nearly 40 students packed a pep bus and headed to Graceland University to cheer on the football team as they took on the Cowboys. Their energy and dedication impressed everyone so much that the Booster Club sponsored another pep bus the following week for the October 3rd matchup against WACO. Once again, the bus was full and the spirit was unstoppable.

Volleyball games have been just as lively, with students jumping, chanting, and celebrating every point. The excitement is contagious, and our athletes love feeding off the energy the crowd provides. It keeps them motivated, especially during the toughest moments of the game.

The fun isn't stopping anytime soon! The student section plans to keep the momentum going strong through basketball and wrestling season. Their pride, passion, and Bear spirit make every game night something special at English Valleys.

Senior Portrait Requirements 2025

The publications class uses your senior photo as your school picture in the yearbook. It is also often used in the senior video (But you can submit a different one if you would like). You can either bring a physical photograph or you can email a digital file of the photograph. If you bring in a physical photo, we will scan the photo and return it to you. If you send a digital photo, please send it to Mrs. Burdick, the yearbook advisor at cburdick@english-valleys.k12.ia.us. You may even be able to have your photographer email your senior photo directly to us. The deadline for senior photos is Wednesday, December 17, 2025. Seniors needing an extension must make arrangements with the yearbook advisor BEFORE the December 17 deadline.

Requirements

- The photo must be vertical. Horizontal photos will be cropped or replaced if necessary.
- You must be facing the camera, both eyes visible. (We want to see your face)
- Backgrounds (trees, rocks, columns, etc.) should not block the view of the student's face.
- Senior clothing and jewelry must be "school-appropriate"
- No texture, name stamping, embossing, watermarks, or date stamp

Recommendations

- Photos are best if they are at least 300 dpi in resolution
- Please do not print digital images off at home and send them in, just email the image to Mrs. Burdick
- Printed photos are best if they are 3 x 5 to 8 x 10 (bigger photos scan in a little better)

Having Trouble Getting Your Senior Photos Taken? You are not required to have a professional take your senior portrait. If for some reason you will not be able to get your senior photo taken by the due date, you are not planning on taking any, or you are unable to afford them, please contact Mrs. Burdick, the yearbook advisor, at cburdick@english-valleys.k12.ia.us. We will be happy to make arrangements to have one of our staff or the advisor take your photo for the yearbook. All students will also have a school picture taken at the beginning of the year and we can use that photo if necessary/requested. We do not want anyone to be left out!!

Meet Mr. Wherle: New Energy in P.E.

By: Tyler Wiseman

Our new PreK–12 physical education teacher, Mr. Dawson Wherle, is excited to begin his first year at English Valleys and is looking forward to meeting students and having fun. He enjoys getting to know different personalities and appreciates how each student is unique in their own way.

Mr. Wherle chose to become a P.E. teacher because of his passion for sports and athletics. Staying active has always been important to him, and he hopes to encourage and motivate students to be active as well. "It's kind of been a big passion of mine, and I thought it was a good calling," he said.

Mr. Wherle grew up in Iowa and attended Louisa-Muscatine High School. He then went to Southeast Community College, where he competed on the track team, before finishing his degree at the University of Northern Iowa. His favorite sport is track, and he finds it exciting to watch the many talented track athletes in Iowa compete at the state meet each year.

Outside of teaching, Mr. Wherle enjoys watching football and basketball, golfing, and coaching—which takes up much of his time in the winter and spring. This year, he will serve as the assistant coach for the junior high girls' basketball team, the head coach of the junior high boys' basketball team, and the assistant coach for the high school girls' track team.

Mr. Wherle looks forward to a fun and active school year. He hopes to inspire students to enjoy fitness both in class and through his coaching.

Upcoming Women in Ag Leadership Conference Inspires Resilience

Early bird registration is available through Nov. 10

By: Madeline Schultz, Lisa Scarbrough

AMES – The Iowa State University Extension and Outreach Women in Ag Leadership Conference is open to all. This year’s theme, “Leading with Resilience,” reflects the strength, perseverance and innovation of women who are shaping the future of agriculture.

Organized by an advisory committee of past attendees, the two-day event begins on Wednesday, Dec. 3, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and continues on Thursday, Dec. 4, from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

“We have planned an incredible lineup of speakers and workshops. Whether you are a farm producer or work in agriculture, whether you’re young or old and whether you’ve been farming for five years or 50, we have something for everyone,” said Luci Sheriff, advisory committee member.

Attending from Oregon, American Farmland Trust social science director and Women for the Land advisor Gabrielle McNally will open the conference. Her storytelling and shared wisdom aim to encourage women to lead with confidence.

Campus tours of Iowa State University will offer a glimpse into innovative research. Attendees can choose from a variety of topics, including greenhouses, drones, horses, forestry, winemaking, the ISU Creamery, the Ag 450 Farm or Jack Trice Stadium’s turfgrass.

Next, the intensive workshop series will feature interactive mentoring, a women managing farmland panel, crisis incident management exercises and strategies for leading with excellence. A message from Brenda Clark Hamilton, founder of Fresh Coffee Professional Growth Programs, will conclude the first day.

On Thursday morning, keynote speaker Kiley Fleming, founder of outSIGHTin and executive director at Iowa Mediation Services, will deliver an uplifting message to inspire attendees to face challenges with strength and resilience.

The Women in Ag program will also recognize the 2025 Women Impacting Ag honorees: Tamara Deal, Darcy Moultsby, Natalie Paino and Loretta Reimers.

The afternoon panel will focus on advances in regenerative agriculture, featuring Keri Carstens, CEO for Jord Bio Science, and Lisa Schulte Moore, ISU Charles F. Curtiss Distinguished Professor in Agriculture and Life Sciences and co-director of the Bioeconomy Institute.

Additionally, Thursday’s breakout sessions will offer important insights and discussions on agricultural policy, financial security, team building, career mentoring, estate planning, farm safety, workplace challenges and farming’s financial situation.

Capstone speaker Julie Kenney will share a powerful message of leadership and resilience. As CEO of the Agribusiness Association of Iowa and a 2024 Women Impacting Agriculture award recipient, Kenney exemplifies dedication to the industry and a commitment to empowering others.

Registration Early bird registration is available through Nov. 10. Regular registration is $160 for adults and $70 for students. After Nov. 10, fees will increase by $20. Scholarships may be requested. For more information, view the full event program.

Support from Farm Credit Services of America and other sponsors allows the Women in Ag Leadership Conference to remain accessible for all attendees. Farm businesses and organizations are encouraged to become attendance sponsors by registering four or more participants to join the experience.

Manage Fire Risks During Harvest

Dry conditions raise field fire concerns during Iowa corn harvest

By: Kris Kohl
AMES – Early planting combined with warm spring and fall conditions has led to an earlier-than-usual corn harvest in Iowa. Crops are also drier than normal, creating a greater risk of field fires during harvest.

The primary factor related to field fires is higher air temperature. It dries out crops more quickly and creates conditions favorable for field fires to ignite and spread. Wind speed affects the risk of a field fire spread by aiding combustion as well as by carrying heat and burning embers to new fields:

Below 15 miles per hour: low risk of spreading

Between 15 and 20 miles per hour: medium risk

Over 25 miles per hour: high risk

“Fires often originate when corn leaves or residue come in contact with a hot surface,” said Kris Kohl, field agricultural engineer with Iowa State University Extension and Outreach. “Common ignition sources include exhaust systems, overheated bearings and high temperature sources in the engine compartment.”

To reduce fire risk, Kohl recommends farmers:

Use a leaf blower or compressed air to regularly remove fine chaff from equipment surfaces.

Keep a fully charged fire extinguisher in the combine cab to contain small fires and consider mounting a larger fire extinguisher at ground level outside the cab for larger blazes.

Be cautious of truck exhausts, which can ignite dry cornstalks.

“Any ignition source in combination with dry plant residue presents a potential hazard,” Kohl said.

Once a field fire starts, it can be difficult and dangerous to contain. Personal safety should always take priority over property. “Know your 911 field (street) address, and always call 911 first to minimize damage,” Kohl said. “If it is safe to do so, attack the fire with extinguishers or make a tillage pass on the edge of the field to prevent a fire from spreading.”

Kohl also advises farmers to consider avoiding combining on high-wind days and to remain vigilant about keeping equipment clean throughout the harvest season.

Environmental groups appeal federal court decision on EPA reporting requirements

Decision upheld a rule exempting livestock facilities from air pollution reporting

By: Cami Koons | Iowa Capital Dispatch

Environmental groups are appealing a federal court’s decision to uphold a rule exempting livestock and poultry operations from reporting significant releases of air pollutants.

The environmental groups allege the rule is unlawful and that exposure to ammonia and hydrogen sulfide from these operations is responsible for more deaths annually than exposure to air pollution from coal plants.

The National Cattlemen’s Beef Association, which intervened in the case, celebrated the court ruling in its favor and said the rules were “onerous and unnecessary” by requiring producers to file “complex, overreaching reports.”

In August, the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia denied the environmental groups’ request for summary judgment and instead granted judgment on behalf of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and the Cattlemen.

EPCRA and CERCLA Two laws are at play in the case. The Emergency Planning and Community Right-to-Know Act, or EPCRA, and the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act, or CERCLA, which require certain entities to notify EPA and local officials of a “potentially dangerous” release of a hazardous substance, according to EPA.

EPA has attempted to change the rule, as it relates to animal waste at farms, in the past, according to the court’s filed memorandum of opinion. Then in 2018, Congress passed a law that exempted air emissions from animal waste on farms from CERCLA reporting requirements.

In 2019, EPA filed a final rule to exempt animal waste emissions from EPCRA requirements in order to match the regulations to the recently changed CERCLA rules.

Plaintiffs in the case Environmental groups in the case include Rural Empowerment Association for Community Help, Animal Legal Defense Fund, Center for Food Safety, Don’t Waste Arizona, Environmental Integrity Project, Food & Water Watch, Humane Society of the United States, Sierra Club, Sound Rivers, Waterkeeper Alliance and Center for Biological Diversity.

The environmental groups alleged EPA relied “unlawfully” on the congressional changes to CERCLA as justification for changing the rules in EPCRA that let “the industrial animal industry off the hook.”

The opinion from U.S. District Court Judge Timothy Kelly said the EPA rule was “consistent with the best reading” of EPCRA regulations and provides an explanation for exempting animal waste air emissions.

Kelly wrote that to remain consistent with statutory text, EPA had “no leeway to consider the public’s right to access information” and “no discretion to consider environmental effects” when issuing the 2019 rule.

Environmental groups say reporting requirements protect communities

In a joint news release about the decision to appeal the federal posure to these extremely hazardous substances.”

A recent peer-reviewed study from the University of Michigan found that communities with the highest concentrations of animal feeding operations, like cattle feedlots, dairy farms and hog farms, have elevated levels of harmful fine particulate matter.

According to the study, fine particulate matter was 28% higher in census tracts with high concentrations of cattle feeding operations and 11% higher in census tracts with hog farms.

The environmental groups’ news release said the ammonia and hydrogen sulfide released by “factory farms” can cause health problems like respiratory diseases, eye and nasal irritation, nausea and death.

Kelly Hunter Foster, senior attorney at Waterkeeper Alliance, said people have a “right to know” when hazardous air pollution is released near their homes, schools or work.

“EPA has a responsibility under EPCRA to ensure that information is disclosed to the public,” Hunter Foster said in the release. “Its mandate is to protect human health and the environment, not to create loopholes that allow polluters to hide the truth and put communities and ecosystems at risk.”

In a news release about the court’s opinion, National Cattlemen’s Beef Association said EPCRA and CERCLA regulations were intended to address “massive, severe” environmental contaminants and chemical spills. Instead, the association said, the laws were “weaponized” by animal rights groups targeting “family farms and ranchers.”

Kaitlynn Glover, the association’s executive director of natural resources, said the environmental laws should not “govern” cattle farmers.

“This decision affirms that family cattle producers should not have to file reports for a natural, biological process under a law meant for significant chemical contaminants,” Glover said in the release. “NCBA stepped up to protect family farms and ranches through this litigation and we are pleased that the federal district court has brought clarity to this decades-long discussion.”

Tarah Heinzen, the legal director for the involved environmental group Food & Water Watch, said the Trump Administration’s “see no evil approach will not stand in court.”

“Trump’s EPA is suppressing critical pollution data required to keep frontline communities safe and hold polluters accountable,” Heinzen said in the release. “Factory farms emit dangerous amounts of hazardous chemicals — willful ignorance of the data will not change the truth.”

The appeal from environmental groups was filed Oct. 3.

Is Your Well Still a Reliable Place for Clean Water?

Raising awareness of importance of protecting Iowa’s drinking water

–Kris Nelson, Iowa Soybean Association

Clean, safe drinking water is the foundation of healthy families and thriving communities. Public water supplies are closely regulated and tested, but thousands of Iowans depend on private wells for their daily drinking water.

Unlike public systems, private wells aren’t routinely monitored, placing the responsibility of safeguarding water quality on the well owner. Without consistent testing and proper upkeep, wells can become susceptible to contamination, putting households at risk.

The Iowa Source Water Protection Program, the Iowa Source Water Ag Collaborative and the Iowa Department of Health and Human Services are raising awareness of the importance of protecting Iowa’s drinking water and the resources available to private well owners. This week, known as Source Water Protection week, collaborators want to ensure Iowans are aware of the Private Well Grants program.

About the Private Wells Grants program

The Private Well Grants Program was established to alleviate the financial burden of maintaining and protecting private wells. The program funds assist well owners with the cost of testing their water for bacteria, nitrate and other potential contaminants. It also offers support for repair-ing or reconstructing wells that are no longer in good condition, helping ensure that they remain a safe and reliable source of water. Additionally, the program offers support for closing abandoned or unused wells. These wells, if left open, can act as direct channels for pollutants to enter groundwater, threatening individual households and other communities that may be using that aquifer.

Water stewardship Supporting good water stewardship helps ensure that today’s families and future generations have access to safe drinking water.

The Iowa Soybean Association’s (ISA) Research Center for Farming Innovation (RCFI) works to protect source water by supporting conservation practices that improve water quality. All water is source water for someone or something, whether it’s a private well or a downstream community. Edge-of-field conservation practices, such as bioreactors, wetlands and oxbows, provide benefits for all water users.

“The Iowa Soybean Association encourages farmers and rural residents to test their private wells regularly and take steps to protect source water,” says Tony Seeman, ISA water lab service manager. “Whether it’s for drinking water or for livestock, water quality is always important.”

ISA’s water monitoring program

Routine water monitoring can provide the evidence a farmer needs to adjust management practices accordingly to reduce the amounts of nitrogen and other nutrients lost, whether through tile drainage to a stream or through groundwater.

RCFI’s conservation programming involves monitoring farmers’ water quality, analyzing water quality results and providing feedback annually.

ISA’s water monitoring team regularly collects samples from tile outlets, intakes and streams. Farmers receive updated reports throughout the growing season and a comprehensive analysis at the end of the growing year.

Samples are tested in-house at ISA’s accredited lab. The lab is certified by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency through the Iowa Department of Natural Resources to analyze E. Coli bacteria, nitrates and fluoride under the Safe Drinking Water Act.

Private well owners who want to learn more about the Private Well Grants Program can learn more at the following link or by contacting their county sanitarian.
